

“Health Homes” help Medicaid patients with chronic health problems

On April 1, 2015, Alabama Medicaid expanded its Health Home program to the entire state of Alabama to go along with the Patient 1st program. This change did not take away any Medicaid benefits. Instead, if you have one or more health problems listed below, you may qualify to get extra help!

Here’s what you need to know:

- Some people are already on the Health Home program. Medicaid started this program in 2012 in 21 counties.
- There are many different types of Health Home services. Some examples might be teaching patients how to take care of health problems like diabetes or asthma or helping patients after they go home from the hospital.
- Not all people qualify for extra services, but many do. To qualify, you must have or be at risk of having certain health problems. These include: asthma, diabetes, cancer, COPD, HIV, mental health conditions, substance abuse disorders, transplant need, sickle cell anemia, BMI over 25, heart disease and hepatitis C.
- The Medicaid recipient must be on the Patient 1st program.
- The recipient’s Patient 1st doctor must have signed up with at least one Health Home program in the region they live in. (See the map on the back of this paper)

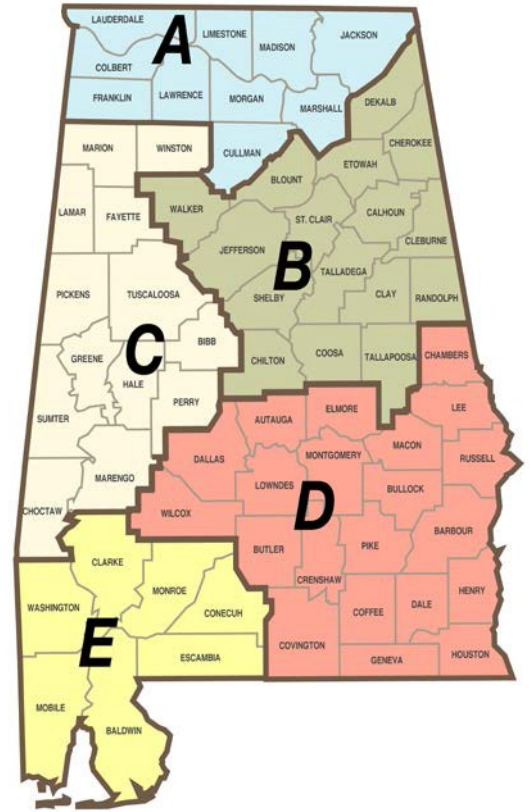

You decide if you want “Health Home” services or not

- If you qualify for HH services, the program in your region will contact you to set up a time to go over your health needs.
- Recipients who qualify for the program can decide if they want the extra services or not.
- If you have or are at risk for one or more health problems listed above, and want the extra services, you must choose a Patient 1st doctor who has signed up with at least one Health Home program. In this case, Medicaid will assign you to the Health Home program your doctor has joined.
- If you qualify for the Health Home program, but your Patient 1st doctor has not signed up for the program, you have the right to change to a Patient 1st doctor who has signed up for the Health Home program.
- If you qualify for the Health Home program, but decide to stay with a Patient 1st doctor who is not signing up for the Health Home program, you will still continue to get Medicaid services, but you will not get any extra services.

You may change Patient 1st doctors and Health Home programs at any time. You may pick any doctor who sees Patient 1st patients from the county you live in as long as he or she has space available. To make a change, look on the back of this paper to find the number for your region.
