Effective Date: 11/01/2024

Por favor, llame por teléfono 1-800-362-1504 para esta informacion en español.

For Your Protection

This notice describes how medical information about you may be used and disclosed and how you can get access to this information. Please review it carefully.

This notice is being sent to you so you will know about the laws that protect your medical information. You do not need to do anything with this notice or call Medicaid unless you have a problem or concern about the law.

MEDICAID PROMISES TO KEEP YOUR INFORMATION PRIVATE

Your health information is personal. However, there are times when Medicaid must share information with others to help you get the health care you need. When this must be done, Medicaid promises to follow the law so that your information is kept private. This notice tells you how Medicaid uses and shares information about you and what your rights are under the law. It tells the rules Medicaid must follow when using or sharing your information.

UNDERSTANDING THE TYPE OF INFORMATION THAT MAY BE SHARED

There are many good reasons for your information to be shared. If you apply for Medicaid through another agency (such as the Department of Human Resources or the Social Security Administration), that agency must send information about you to Medicaid. Information that may be sent to us includes your name, address, birth date, phone number, Social Security number, health insurance policies, and health information. When your healthcare providers send claims to Medicaid for payment, the claims must include your diagnosis and the medical treatments you received. For Medicaid to pay for some medical treatments, your healthcare providers must also send extra medical information such as doctor's statements, x-rays, or lab test results.

HOW MEDICAID USES AND SHARES HEALTH CARE INFORMATION

Medicaid contracts with others outside of the agency for some services. For example, Medicaid contracts with a company to process the claims sent in by your healthcare provider.

Medicaid may need to share some or all of your information with a company so that your healthcare bills can be paid. When this is done, Medicaid requires that the company follow the law and keep all of your information safe.

Medicaid will not use or share genetic information about you when deciding if you are eligible for Medicaid.

Medicaid will not use your information to sell you products or sell your information to a company that will try to get you to buy products or services.

Medicaid will not share your substance use disorder treatment or payment information without your written consent unless allowed by law. In addition to the privacy protections afforded to all medical records under HIPAA, the confidentiality of substance use disorder records is protected by another federal law referred to as Part 2.

Medicaid will not use or disclose your reproductive health care history for prohibited purposes as defined by law.

Here are the ways Medicaid uses and shares your health information.

For each category, we will say what we mean and give an example.

1. Medical Treatment: Medicaid may use or share information about you to make sure that you get needed medical treatment or services. For example, your doctor may receive information about you from Medicaid.
2. For Payment: Medicaid may use and share information about you so that it can pay for your health services. For example, when you get a Medicaid service, your healthcare provider asks Medicaid to pay for that service by filing a claim. On the claim form, your provider must identify you and describe your diagnoses and treatments.
3. To Run the Medicaid Program: Medicaid may use or share information about you to run the Medicaid program. For example, Medicaid may contract with a company that looks at hospital records to check on the quality of care given to you and the outcome of your care.
4. To Other Government Agencies That Provide Benefits or Services to You: Medicaid may share information about you with other government agencies that are giving you benefits or services. For example, Medicaid may be asked to give the Alabama Department of Public Health information so you can qualify for benefits or services.
5. To Keep You Informed: Medicaid may use your information to send you materials to help you live a healthy life. For example, Medicaid may send you a brochure about an illness or condition you have or about your managed care choices.
6. To Check on Health Care Providers: Medicaid may share information about you with the government agencies that license and inspect medical facilities. An example is the Alabama Department of Public Health which inspects nursing homes.

7. For Research: Medicaid may share information about you for an approved research project. A review board must approve any research project and its rules to make sure your information is kept private.
  8. As Required by Law: When requested, Medicaid will share information about you with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
  9. Breach Notification: In the case of a breach of unsecured protected health information, we will notify you as required by law. In some circumstances, our business associate may provide the notification.
